KIRKLAND GRANTED NEW TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGE

MARINE CORPS OFFICER SHOT IN NICARAGUA

Following Which Lt. Com. Of Marines Has Run-in With Pres.

Managua, Nicaragua, Apr. 6-(AP)-A searching inquiry was under way today into events of Saturday night which culminated in the shooting of a Marine Corps Sergeant and a subsequent dramatic contact between a Naval Surgeon officer and the President of Nicaragua.

The Marine Sergeant, W. H. Pigg, who also was a Second Lieutenant in the Nicaraguan National Guard, is understood to have become slightly demented as a consequence of the severe strain to which everyone here has been subjected since last Tuesday's quake.

In the course of a reprimand to members of the Guard Nacional he was shot and killed, and was taken to a house nearby where President Moncado and members of his staff had established their residence. Intense excitement prevailed and feeling outside ran high.

Lieutenant Commander William Hetfield, who at nearby Campo De Marte, has been in charge of the herculean surgical task which followed the earthquake, heard of the shooting, and understanding that a Marine was wounded, rushed to the house.

Marine Officer Stopped

He was stopped at the door by two Nicaraguan officials, supposed foreign minister, who was educated in the United States; and Antonio Flores Vega, Minister of Public Works, who does not speak English.

Lieutenant Commander Hetfield, worn almost to the breaking point, by the tremendous strain of hundreds of operations and other relief work with which he has been associated since last Tuesday, demanded entrance and when it was refused he forced his way into the house.

Inside he found the Marine Sergeant dead instead of wounded as he had expected. President Moncado appeared and in the excitement of the moment reminded the American Naval officer that he was the President of Nicaragua, a reminder to which Hetfield made what was understood to be an undiplomatic answer.

Lieutenant Commander Hetfield left for Corinto, seaport on the Pacific coast, by a special United States Marine Corps airplane at noon Sunday, leaving the surgical work which he has directed in the hands of others. No official statement has been made by Colonel F. L. Bradman, commarding Marines, other than that an inquiry to develop the facts in Pigg's death was underway.

Was Sad Easter

Managua spent a sad Easter Sunday. The cities churches all were destroyed in the quake which leveled the city and took 2,000 lives last Tuesday but masses were said at several improvised chapels. Martial law of the strictest type prevailed and to most of the 15,000 inhabitants remaining in and about Managua the day was merely another in an endless quest for food.

The correspondent driving in from Puerto Zuelo after dark last night, found Managua deserted and dark, with the atmosphere of a big cemetery at midnight. United States Marines and Guard members stood on every corner, watchful for looters, of whom 20 or more are understood to have been shot in the past few days.

The relief work, taken in charge by the Red Cross, is proceeding. President Moncado has ordered that all must work at clearing the refuse and debris to get any of the food which is being distributed.

DIXON CHURCHES WORSHIP CHRIST RISEN ON EASTER

Beautiful Services In Celebration Of The Resurection

Although the sun played at hide and seek for the greater portion of the day, Easter Sunday proved a delightful day and the nice weather and natural inclination swelled the attendance at all the house of worship in the city, so that seating capacity was taxed. The sermons by the Dixon pastors were messages of inspiration and hope, the music was exceptionally beautiful in all the churches and the floral decorations at the altars and chancels were lovely. It was an ideal Easter Day, and the great American public throughout the land gave thanks in the churches for their many privileges.

On Sunday afternoon a beautiful service was held at 3 o'clock at the Methodist church for the Knights Templar. The DeMolay were given seats of honor at the excellent sermon preached in a masterly manner by Rev. A. T. Stephenson Special musical numbers were much enjoyed. The Knights in their uniforms and white plumed helmets made an imposing procession in marching to and from the church to the music of their drum and bugle corps, with Old Glory on high.

MINISTER HELD FOR MURDER OF AN EVANGELIST

Resigned Pastor Of Mo. Church Is Alleged To Be Jealous

Nevada, Mo., Apr. 6-(AP)—The reunited congregation of a little log church at Halley's Bluffs mourned today as a coroner's jury took up the shooting of the Rev. George Rider, Kansas City evangelist, at the home of its former pastor, the Rev. J. A. Brown, Saturday.

The evangelist, 43, mortally wounded on a mission of peace, died here Easter Sunday praying for forgiveness for Mr. Brown, a 67 year old veteran of the ministry who was held in the Vernon County jail.

"I wish I was dead, too," the prisoner said.

A pall was cast over their little church in the White Oak Clearing. The men and women in its home-made pews worshipped in sorrow under a crudely painted motto:

"Christian Union Without Controversy."

Former Pastor Jealous

Webster Hallett, prosecuting attorney, said the motive of the shooting hinged on the success of services Mr. Rider had conducted the last three weeks in the non-denominational pulpit. Mr. Brown resigned last December. Sixteen persons were converted in a revival that restored harmony to the church.

Mr. Rider, called to attend a funeral in Kansas City, said he sought to pay Mr. Brown a compliment in asking him to conduct Easter services. The former pastor refused.

The evangelist was shot in the back and left side as he returned with Mrs. Rider to his motor car. Dropping to his knees, he prayed for his assailant.

"I would rather go back to Kansas City in a box," he said. "Than to leave this community while there is so much bad feeling in it."

Tells Varied Tales

C. P. McCumber, Deputy Sheriff and a member of the church, arrested the former pastor. Authorities said he had told several versions of events leading up to the shooting.

He was quoted as saying insistence of the evangelist on a reconciliation had angered him and led to blows. And again he said the evangelist had attempted to force entrance to his house. He said dissension had caused him to resign.

"There was a lot of gossip," he said, "A lot of untrue gossip. I got out of the church to stop it."

64 FATALITIES EASTER

SIX DIE IN RIVER

Chester, Ill., April 6—(AP)—A Coroner's jury was called today to investigate the drowning of six persons, including an enter family of father, mother and three children here last night when a motor car in which they were riding plunged down an embankment and into the Mississippi river. Two other occupants of the car were rescued.

John Maness of St. Louis, driver of the car, started down the embankment which leads to a ferryboat landing, but had gone only a short distance when he discovered the boat was in the middle of the stream Upon seeing the car, attendants of the boat signaled they would return to the Illinois side, but Maness appeared to lose control of the vehicle and it plunged ahead at rapid speed Attaches of the ferry rescued Manes sand Allen Brooks, who managed to free themselves from the car, a coach, and made futile attempts to pull Mrs. Maness and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cerney and their three children from the water. Early today all of the bodies, with the exception of that of one of the Cerney children, had been recovered.

The party was enroute to Perryville, Mo., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Maness' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hager, and to help Samuel Maness, who lives with her grandparents, celebrate his eighth birthday. All of the occupants of the car lived in St. Louis.

PROPRIETOR OF CAMP WHY NOT HELD UP AND ROBBED OF $50 EARLY THIS MORN

Couple Of Well Dressed Youths Carefully Planned Stick-Up

Two youths, both well-dressed, robbed the proprietor of Why-Not camp, on the Lincoln highway west of Dixon, early this morning of $50.

The theft was reported to Dixon police by G. Stauffer, proprietor of the camp. He stated that the men were driving a Chevrolet coupe, but that he was unable to get the license number.

"About 1 o'clock this morning a young man came up to the cabin, told me his car was out of gas down by the Golden Pheasant and asked if he could get some," Stauffer said today, "I was just closing up but I went out to the pump and as soon as I got out there, the car drove up and the fellow that was waiting for the gas stuck a gun in my ribs."

"He got $50, that was all I had in my pocket. He didn't bother to go into the cabin at all but drove off immediately, toward Dixon."

He believes that the robbery was accomplished by someone well acquainted with the camp.

Loitered About Camp.

"The same car drove past the camp about six times last night, before the robbery. I didn't think anything about his stopping there, as a lot of cars do. They didn't buy anything, just stopped for a moment or two then drove on."

Sheriff Richardson said that a deputy stationed at Amboy had reported yesterday evening that he had tried to stop a coupe answering to the description of the robbers' car at 11 o'clock. He had been unable to do so, however and reported to Dixon, in the hope that, if the car headed this way, it could be picked up.

Stauffer was unable to get more than the first three numbers of the robbers' license last night.

Leaves Prisoners To Interview Witness

Memphis, Tenn., Apr. 6-(AP)-Deputy Sheriff G. A. Hoel of Proctor, Minn., here to return two men charged with murder and robbery there, planned to go today to Greenwood, Miss., to interview a man reported to have witnessed the slaying. The witness' name was not divulged.

Harvey Grizzel, 32, and George Reilly, 23, East St. Louis, Ill., indicted in Minnesota on a charge of slaying a payroll guard in 1929, will be returned if Hoel succeeds in fighting habeas corpus proceedings instituted by their attorneys. Hoel said Sheriff Emil Erickson and Prosecutor Mason Forbes of Proctor were expected here today to assist him.

The men have been indicted by a grand jury here on pistol carrying charges. Memphis police have agreed to waive their claims if Minnesota obtains custody.

One of the worst and wickedest cities ni the world is Irkutsh, in Siberia. Witha population of 120,000, as many as 500 murders are committed there every year. Arrests average only one in 50 murders and only one-half the arrests are followed by convictions.

INSANE SEAMAN RUNS AMUCK ON SHIP THIS MORN

Shot Two Men Before Turning Gun On Self Today

Philadelphia, April 6—(UP)— The Second Engineer of the Cuban sugar ship, Helen, went insane today while the ship was in midstream between Philadelphia and Camden, fatally shot one man, wounded another and then committed suicide, police reported.

Claude McCrory, 709 Madison Ave., Fairport, Ill., was the second Engineer who wielded the gun.

Wilfred Moller, 36, address unknown, an oiler on the boat, was the man fatally injured.

The wounded man, William Coughlin, 27, a native of Passage West, County Court, Ireland, was brought ashore and taken to the St. Agnes hospital. His condition was critical.

A wireless message for aid, sent out by the captain of the Helen, was picked up at the League Is and Navy yard and a tug load of Marines was instantly dispatched to the boat.

Police of Philadelphia and Camden were then notified by the Navy officials, and boats were sent out from both shores of the Delaware river. Camden police said that the officer suddenly became insane as the boat was nearing its anchorage.

Appearing on the deck with a revolver, he started shooting at all seamen aboard, who fled below deck to avoid the pistol shots.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR FALL NEAR; CASE AFFIRMED

The D. C. Appellate Court Also Sustained Fine Against Blackmer

Washington, April 6—(UP)—Punishment came near for Albert B. Fall and Henry M. Blackmer today when the Appellate Court of the District of Columbia affirmed decisions and sentences imposed upon them more than a year ago.

Fall, now an old man living in semi-seclusion on his New Mexico ranch, his health broken, is under sentence to serve a year in prison and pay a fine of $100,000 for allegedly accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny of Los Angeles. He was accused of having conveyed to Doheny in return for a $100,000 bribe the valuable Elk Hills oil rights in California. At that time he was Secretary of the Interior in the Harding cabinet and high in the councils of his party.

Blackmer, now an exile in France, was fined $60,000 for contempt of court, he having refused to obey a summons to appear as a witness in the hearings of the so-called Elk Hills and Teapot Dome oil cases. Blackmer was a wealthy oil man of Denver, Colo.

One Barrier Remains

Today's decision leaves but one possible legal barrier between the two men and their sentences. That barrier is an appeal to the United States Supreme Court which they have the right to invoke if they so choose. No one here connected with the case could say definitely immediately after the decision whether an appeal would be taken but there was a general belief that it would.

Two lengthy opinions were handed down today, one in the Fall case, the other in the case of Blackmer.

In the Blackmer opinion written by Associate Justice Charles H. Robb, the history of the legal proceedings states Blackmer was wanted to testify regarding the continental Trading Company, Ltd., and its distribution in 1921 and 1922 of Liberty bonds, some of which are believed to have been delivered to Fall by Harry M. Sinclair.

Robb held a citizen "owes an absolute and permanent allegiance to his government."

"It is inconceivable," Robb continued, referring to Blackmer's flight when summoned as a witness, "that a citizen may clog the wheels of justice by crossing the international border and that the government should be powerless to summon him to return and to subject him to a penalty if without cause, he fails to respond to the summons.

Robber Leaves Jail; Jailer Was at Home

Paxton, Ill., Apr. 6 —(AP)— Fred Dawn, 25, New Haven, Ky., calmly sawed his way out of the Ford county jail here yesterday while the turnkey spent the afternoon at his home across the street.

Eight other prisoners, who refused to follow Dawn, succeeded in attracting the attention of children playing on a nearby lawn and sent one of them for the turnkey, Charles Crowe, who then launched the search.

Dawn, known as "The Dude," was arrested June 19 after allegedly robbing the Nelson general store at Clarence, Ill. He was held to the grand jury which meets here next week.

Sheriff Harry E. Reehl explained that it was not unusual to leave the jail unguarded as long as the prisoners were not "too dangerous." There was no guard on duty last night again, he said.

Establishes Good Will Promotion Fund: Is Planning Others

New York, April 6—(AP)—Gustave Oberlaender of Reading, Pa., an immigrant who earned only $7 a week when he was clerk in a New York bookstore 42 years ago, has established a fund of $1,000,000 to promote goodwill between the United States and Germany, his homeland.

The gift is announced by the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation which, with a board of directors including Mr. Oberlaender, will administer the fund. The money will be distributed over a period of 25 years among adults who wish to study in Germany, who have an interest in international affairs and "are qualified to interpret their findings to the American people."

Mr. Oberlaender, at one time a manufacturer of knitted wear, retired from business several years ago. Yesterday at his home in Reading he explained the reasons for the fund.

"I've come to the conclusion," he said, "that I want to dispose of my money while I am living. This endowment will be followed by others the nature of which I am unable to tell because I haven't definitely made up my mind what they will be."

"I don't know what the endowment will actually do," he said, "but I have hopes that it will do much."

The craft was owned by Forsey and Tibbo.

JUDGE DECIDES IN FAVOR GARY STEEL WORKER

Will Face Second Trial For Murder Of Sweetheart April 29

Valparaiso, Ind., April 6—(AP)—Virgil Kirkland was granted a new trial today for the murder of his Gary schoolgirl sweetheart, Arlene Draves. Judge Grant Crumpacker in Porter county Circuit Court ruled that evidence on the first count in the indictment, that of murder by striking the 18-year-old girl with his fist, was insufficient for conviction.

Judge Crumpacker's decision was rendered after studying the evidence for several weeks. Kirkland's punishment had been fixed by the jury at life imprisonment. The court said there would have been "no question about it" if the jury had voted for conviction on the count charging murder while commiting rape.

Would Have Been Reversed.

A crowded courtroom heard the judge read his lengthy decision. Judge Crumpacker expressed sympathy for the family of the dead Gary, Ind., girl who died after a drinking party there last November 29. He said a higher court would surely have reversed the jury's decision had he refused Kirkland a new trial and instead granted him an appeal.

"I received more mail regarding this case than any other in my experience on the bench," he said. "Ninety percent of it was from Chicago and most of it from women."

Kirkland, a 20-year-old Gary mill worker, was convicted March 10 after a trial lasting 12 days before a male jury. He was not sentenced pending decision on his petition for a new trial. Four of his companions of the liquor party are awaiting trial on charges of attacking the girl.

Set For April 29.

Judge Crumpacker named April 29 as the date for Kirkland's new trial.

Chief Deputy Prosecutor John Underwood, Jr., chacterized the decision today as an "outrage." He announced to the court the state would consider dismissing the first two counts of the indictment charging murder by a blow of the fist and with a blunt instrument, and trying Kirkland on the last two counts charging murder in perpetration of rape and while attempting perpetration of rape.

The court said it "could not believe the defendant guilty of premeditation "because of the "bungling" method of the slaying and the fact that Kirkland immediately told the girl's relatives of her death.

"If the jury had voted the defendant guilty on the third or fourth counts of the affidavit there would be no question regarding a new trial." Judge Crmpacker said.

David Thompson, host to the liquor party, is scheduled to go on trial April 14 in Crown Point. He is expected to seek a continuance pending Kirkland's new trial.

"Youth Was Surprised."

"Kirkland was as surprised as anyone else at the girl's death," Judge Crumpacker said. "No motive has been assigned as to why the defendant should want to put her to death. There is no positive evidence that he had any thought of so doing."

The court said in its opinion Kirkland had struck the girl with his fist and that the blow on her head was the prime cause of death. It added the girl "did not die of a hemorrhage unless it was a cranial hemorrhage," but that "if the defendant did not intend to kill the girl, no matter how reckless his conduct was, he could not be convicted under court one of the affidavit."

Kirkland's face lit up as the judge intoned his decision to grant a new trial. So did those of his mother and step-father. Four brothers and the father of Miss Draves were in court also.

OHIO CONVICTS WHO CONFESSED TO STARTING FIRE WHICH KILLED 320 FELLOWS ENTER PLEA "NOT GUILTY"

Columbus, O., Apr. 6 (UP)—Hugh Gibson and Clinton Grate, Ohio penitentiary convicts who confessed they were responsible for the fire of a year ago when 320 prisoners perished, today pleaded not guilty to three indictments charging first degree murder.

The pleas were heard by Judge C. J. Randall after he had named four attorneys to defend the men. Both prisoners said they were without counsel and without funds with which to employ attorneys.

Gibson and Grate had announced following their confessions last week that they would plead guilty if the court would guarantee that they would be sentenced to the electric chair immediately. They asked to confer with Judge Randall Saturday, but he refused, holding that the consequences of such a plea were so great he would not listen to it until after the men had conferred with attorneys.

An indication that the pleas might be changed was given when the attorneys informed the court they retained the right to make a change later if they thought necessary.

Date of the trial will be set after attorneys for Gibson and Grate decide upon a future course.

TWO MEMBERS OF UNITED STATES MARINE BAND HELD FOR MURDER OF FELLOW MARINE IN MARYLAND

Washington, April 6—(UP)— Two members of the United States Marine Band are under arrest in connection with the murder of a third Marine. The body of the murdered man was found in a shallow grave Saturday at Greater Capitol Heights, Md. It was identified as Private Emmanuel Thorne, 24, who enlisted in Macon, Ga.

Private Vincent Selbrickey, tuba player in the band, was arrested soon after the body was found near his home. He is being held without bail in the Marlboro, Md., jail. Edward Carl Schaefer, cornetist in the band, was arrested late yesterday.

Early today police had unearthed no motive for the crime. Thorne had been listed as a deserter since January, when he left the Marine barracks on a brief leave, failing to return.

It was recalled last night that several months ago he had been a witness at the trial of a fellow Marine, who was dismissed from the service. The dismissed man was said to have threatened Thorne's life.

Three bullets from a 32-caliber weapon had been fired into Thorne from the rear. Police believe they have found the murder weapon.

To Hear Pin Drop Around The Globe

New York, April 6-(UP)-A vast and intricate radio network, including stations in Europe, South America, Australia, Patagonia and even Kamtchatka, will be set up tonight—so that the world may hear a pin drop.

The pin will be dropped on a table set before the microphone in the studios of the National Broadcasting Company and the sound, amplified 1,000,000 times, will roar across the North American continent and around the world. The total noise will be great enough to drown out ten Niagaras or 1,000 cannons.

On the same hook-up, Crestes H. Caldwell, former member of the federal Radio Commission will speak on American broadcasting. The broadcast starts at 7:31 p. m. (est), or 10:31 a. m. Tuesday Australian time.

Ohio River Jumps Banks; Three Die

Columbus, O., April 6—(AP)—Slowly rising rivers threatened inundation of hundreds more acres of southern Ohio farm lands today and flood conditions were predicted for several days despite the cessation of heavy rains. Swollen streams have claimed three lives and have poured out over a number of highways.

The Hocking river was receding at Athens county, but the Ohio river was rising steadily at Portsmouth and Cincinnati. At Portsmouth a stage of 50 feet was expected today. Flood stage there is about 60 feet. One of the two highways running west from Portsmouth was under water and the other was threatened with inundation. Cincinnati expected a peak of 45 feet by tomorrow, seven feet less than the Ohio's stage there.

Southern Ohio was the worst sufferer with water standing over fields and roads and in some cases entering basements to progide an unwelcome contract with drought conditions of last summer.

CHICAGO VOTES FOR MAYOR OF 1933 TOMORROW

Predict Largest Vote Ever Cast in Mayoralty Election

Chicago, April 6—(UP)—The city of Chicago will decide tomorrow whether William Hale Thompson, Republican, or Anton J. Cermak, Democrat, shall be its mayor during the world's fair of 1933.

Leaders of both parties predicted today that more than 1,000,000 votes will be cast in the election which universally is admitted to be one of the most important ever held here.

Both candidates today completed their campaigns. Each predicted he would win. Straw votes favored Cermak by a larger majority than any mayorship candidate ever has received.

Thompson, known through the world as "Big Bill," frequently has boasted that he is the best "showman" among the country's politicians. He is seeking a fourth term.

Cermak Heads Cook County

Cermak is Chairman of the Cook County Board and has been a power in Democratic politics for years.

One of Thompson's principal campaign issues has been that his opponent is "too powerful" and wants to be "a master" by holding all the jobs at once.

In his final summing up of the campaign, Cermak outlined the principal issues as: Crime; taxation; the restoring of Chicago's lost reputation; and relief of increasing unemployment.

Thompson also stressed taxation as an issue. He charged that if "Cermak and his gang" were given control of the city they would increase the tax "burden" which he said they already had brought about while in control of the county.

"It is unthinkable," the mayor said.

Thompson Dismisses Crime Charge

Cermak's issue, "crime," was dismissed by the mayor with a sentence:

"Only 13 cities in the United States of over 100,000 population have less crime per capita than Chicago—67 have more," he said.

In his final statements, Thompson accused Cermak not only of "wanting to be dictator," but of being the "tool of wealth" and of using his power in the county and in the minority representation in the state legislature to raise taxes so wealthy interests could take over millions of dollars worth of small bank assets and holdings of small property owners.

"Tony didn't get his $6,000,000 being chairman of the county board," he said.

"I wish to warn the people of Chicago against the greatest menace that has ever threatened them and our city in a mayoralty campaign," Thompson stated.

"The election of Cermak, self-styled 'master', would impose upon Chicago and Illinois a dictatorship more autocratic and dangerous than anything ever attempted in the history of American politics."

Cermak Spurns Thompson's Charges

In each of his five addresses Sunday, Cermak said he had wanted to answer in detail all personal charges made by Thompson during the campaign, but that he believed Chicago did not want any more of "that kind of politics."

His answer, he said, was merely, "they are all untrue."

In these addresses, Cermak declared repeatedly that he considered it of utmost importance that Chicago prove to the world by its vote Tuesday that it was "through with all the things which have given the city a world-wide unsavory reputation.

Each candidate praised his own public record. Thompson boasted that his three administrations would go down in history as "Chicago's building period." Cermak discredited this and boasted of his own record as a builder.

Thompson stressed the "lakes to Gulf waterway" as a principal issue. "The future of Chicago is interwoven in the destiny of the Mississippi valley," he said.

CARD PARTY.

The Daughters of Union Veterans of Civil War 1861-1865 will sponser a card party to be held in G. A. R. hall Tuesday afternoon, April 7th. Playing will be begin at 2:15 o'clock. Bridge and 500. Prizes and refreshments. Public invited. Adm. 25c. 81t1

Peoria Ave., will be hostess to the Young Woman's Missionary Guild in the April session of that organization. Also Tuesday evening, Mrs. F. L. Spiller, 422 S. Peoria Ave., will entertain the C. C. Bible reading from Easter to Pentecost will consist of the Books of John's Gospel and The Acts (49 chapters —a chapter a day.)

Yesterday was a record-Easter for the church in almost every particular. Four great gatherings, besides the group of Endeavors who held a sunrise service, gave the day an enthusiasm and high courage. The choir cantata in the afternoon received especial commendation. Twelve new members were added to the church and the Bible school leaders were rejoiced by the splendid report of 337 in the classes.

Grocer Fails To Pay Gangsters; Is Bombed

New York, Apr. 6—(UP)—Two children were killed and seven persons injured today because, according to a police theory, a grocer failed to pay adequate tribute to neighborhood thugs.

The casualties resulted from a fire which followed explosion of a bomb planted in front of a five story tenement at 190 Avenue B.

Mary de Pierna, 12, and her sister Lilian, were killed.

The grocer Geruco told police that neighborhood gangsters had harrassed him ever since he opened his store two months ago. Whenever an emissary of the extortioners called, he said, he gave what change he could spare, but apparently it was not sufficient.

Eddie Cantor, Star, Seen In Moose Film

The premier of United Artists productions in Dixon, given Sunday afternoon and evening at Moose hall when Eddie Cantor was presented in "Whoopee" drew crowds which filled the hall to capacity and as a result, since the Moose have donated a part of their share of the receipts to the Goodfellows, the treasury of the welfare committee will be nicely enhanced. The production, a classy one, will be repeated this evening.

TABLE STOLEN FROM ASSEMBLY PARK IS FOUND

Sheriff's Force Solved Depredations By Several Boys

Thefts of property from Assembly Park and cottages were discovered Saturday when reports were received at the Sheriff's office of breaking and entering into a cottage in the east end of the park from which an oak dining table was stolen. Deputy Ward Miller investigated and discovered the stolen table in a shack on an island in Rock river east of the city limits.

Chairs, benches and other articles said to have been stolen from the park were also found, it was reported. Several boys who had recently erected a "shack" in the island were rounded up and ordered to return the stolen articles. No arrests were made and it was reported that none of the boys would be prosecuted.

When deputies from the Sheriff's office visited the island, they found two shacks which had been erected this spring. A third building was under construction. Another shack was said to have been built recently on the City island park by several boys.

A hole was cut in the screen which enclosed the porch of a cottage at the park, the door unlocked and the dining table carried away. At another cottage a metal tank was reported missing. There were also reports of many other depredations and destruction of the park property.

THE sleeping Indians girl, Tamelpa, lies
With stone chin pointing to a blue flame star,
Her chiseled profile clear against the skies,
And rests her feet where purple foothills are.

Like breath made visible by chilly air
A light fog plays forever near her head;
Dark, flowing hill lines indicate her hair,
Illuminated by the moonbeams weightless tread.

Her legend is unfathomed; no one knows
Just what she dreams of, there against the sky,
But all who find repose in her repose
Look up to her—and gain new peace therby.

The Annual Easter Egg Rolling Frolic at Washington, D. C. Today

Washington, Apr. 6 —(AP)—Myriad colored hard-boiled eggs today were ready to roll merrilly down the closely cropped White House lawns.

The weather man took an attitude not many children could condone. Like a person who had no special consideration for fun, he had predicted: "cloudy with rain today."

That, however, did not stop the annual pilgrimmage to the White White House. Parents just packed raincoats and rubbers in the baskets, snatched umbrellas and let the rainmaker do what he wanted.

By scores and hundreds the children came until expectations were that the attendance of last year might be eclipsed. Toddlers and good-walkers arrived with their gaily colored baskets, lugging chicks and bunnies and eggs made of chocolate, sugar, cloth or anything the Easter rabbit saw fit to use.

The annual Easter egg roll was not limited to White House lawns, for many other bits of early bright green drew their quota of happy children. And behind the multi-colored eggs thousands of children ran, racing and chasing, rolling their eggs and finding new ones, eating some until tired eyes closed and weary bodies sought mothers' arms.

Mrs. Hoover had spent much time in preparation for the White House event. Last year she was in bed because of a sprained back and watched festivities from the window, but this year she took part in the fun.

Her two older grandchildren—Peggy Ann, 6, and Herbert, III, 3—were on hand. But little Joan, the infant, had to limit her play to what egg rolling she could do in the nursery or in the arms of an attendant.

"Principles Of Americanism" Theme Of Address Given Here Before Dixon Chapter Of D. A. R.

The Dixon Chapter D. A. R. was delightfully entertained at Mrs. W. G. Munnings. Delicious refreshments were served.

Excessive Legislation, widening of governmental authority and a willingness to write legislation into the Costitution of the United States were denounced as un-American and dangerous tendencies in an address on "Principles of Americanism," given before Dixon Chapter D. A. R., Saturday by John B. Maling of Hammond, a retired business executive and student of industrial and governmental affairs.

Growing and recurring attacks against business interests and institutions of government, Mr. Maling declared were striking at the foundation of our national prosperity and world supremacy and were significant of an alarming spread of radical and socialistic thought among our people.

"This government of ours was never intended to be, never was nor is it now, a democracy," he said. "Ours is a representative form of government. That government wos founded on the rock of the Federal Constitution which proclaims the great doctrine of right, justice and equal opportunity for every man and woman, native or foreign born, nutured under the folds of its flag or walking in its paths of citizenship.

"We are the world's greatest creditor nation and the greatest industrial country on earth, and more than that, because up until recent years, here in the United States, individual initiative has always been encouraged and private enterprise permitted to work out its own problems, while government has been wisely restricted to governing only.

"From the dawn of civilization, from the time that men and women first formed the family circle and later joined in tribal groups, out of their experiences, their successes and failures, their joys and sorrows, their triumphs and defeats, out of all that men and women have learned, remembered and practiced, the many great facts and truths of life have been evelved.

"In the crucible of time certain of these facts and truths have fused into great principles of right, justice, equality and truth by which the mental attitude of men and women and, in a larger sense, of governments, are measured and judged.

"Not in all history is there recorded an instance where a body of men seeking to establish a government and give to it a fundamental an organic law, ever exercised so great a degree of selective wisdom regarding these great principles of right, justice and equality as did the Fathers who wrote and gave to their people and to posterity the Constitution of the United States—the greatest chart of government ever given to any people anwwhere on this earth in all history.

"The Constitution is not great because of what it says you may do, as it is because of what it forbids others doing to you. It is its limitations and not its permissions that makes it the great chart of government that it is.

"Thus it happens that when agitators for, and advocates of, radical freak, class and special legislation; when parlor pinks, socialists, bolshevists, communists, and reds, all working together for the common purpose of destroying our present form of government, succeed in putting over such legislation, they later learn that because of the limitations written into the Constitution by the Fathers, that their particular brand of legislation is unconstitutional and invalid. Such reformers refuse to bow their heads and their wills to the knowledge, wisdom and philosophy of government possessed by George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Lamilton, Benjamin Franklin John Adams, James Madison and analized by John Marshall and expounded by Daniel Webster. Instead they go out among an unthinking people and seek by propaganda by "investigations" or "exposes," to force the adoption of an amendment to the constitution that will permit them to work their will against the constitution, the government and the people of the United Sates.

"At the beginning of the Civil war in 1861 this was a nation of thirty-five million people. Today, sixty-eight years later, we have a population in excess of 120,000,000. We are increasing in numbers at the rate of 1,740,000 annually. Within the next forty years this will be a nation of two hundred million people.

"Never, since first society was organized and government established has any other reforms of society of any other government been able to maintain decent economic and social levels for the masses in a nation of two hundred million people.

"And yet when men of vision, tremendous energy and a genius for organization and administration—vision the future, see its needs and seek in good faith to lay the foundations for the mighty agencies of service which must be created if your children and especially your childrens children, are to be saved from sinking to the social and economic levels of the masses of all other nations of two hundred million people, they are opposed; their integrity of intention viciously challenged by men of little vision and less ability.

In a commercial development as tremendous and as rapid as ours during the last century, it is inevitable that there should be some misteps, that some defects should appear. But in America these defects of industrial organization and practice are being ironed out by the normal and healthful process of evolution instead of revolutions.

"Thus the "great wrongs, injustices and evils," to which the pinks and reds point to justify their proposals for radical changes in our American system are merely incidental defects in a great development.

Blind to the great products—world leadership and a prosperity never before equaled by any nation, and that in spite of a present depression, such demagogues sound their ear tickling slogans of government ownership, nationalization of basic industries and all the half-mentally digested legislative panacreas of socialism, communism or sovietism, in ever recurring attacks to destroy confidence in our agencies of service and our basic governmental principles.

"By agencies of service I mean the development of our interior waterways, rail and water terminals, railroads equipped and operated to carry the products of the farms to the markets of the country at a reasonable cost and at a reasonable profit; the development of the agencies of production of iron, steel cement and all products of basic industries; the full development of lines for rapid transportation of great numbers of people; the creating of agencies to supply the millions of our people with light, heat and power and means of communication. If the needs and necessities of the future American people a nation of two hundred millions and more—are to be suppied there must be created such agencies of service as will make these now in operation appear, by comparison, to be mere fledgings.

"It will be only by the development and operation of these vital the present high standards of living agencies and instrumentalities that for the masses in the United States will be maintained permanently.

"It was only the other week that the civilized world turned to that genius among men, Thomas A. Edison, to pay tribute to him for all he has done to make life more livable; to make the home happier; to take the drudgery out of the lives of both men and women; to give light to the world and the control and use of power to mankind. And yet: had Mr. Edison been compelled to depend upon his own financial resources, it is safe to say that the wonderful inventions he has supplied to the service and use of the people would not be utilized to five per cent of their present use. It has required the investment of hundreds yes, thousands of millions of dollars, together with the intense application of mind and brain on the part of many thousands of men, to put the Edison inventions at the service of practically all our people.

"Individual effort plus individual capital could never have accomplished that gigantic task. Organized effort, organized capital, great and clear vision, boundless energy; organizing and administrative ability were the agencies and mediums through which such results were obtained.

"In reviewing the wonderful development of our country during the last century, the amazing progress made along all lines of human endeavor, it is well to remember that when this government was established and the Constitution given to the people this was a nation of but three million people, all scattered aong the Atlantic seaboard; that there was very little machinery in the world. Nearly all labor was manual with long hours and low wages. Then there came the realization that this was a free government, based upon the great principles of right, justice and equal opportunity for every citizen, no matter his origin or condition. Those principles of government seems to have fired the ambitions, stirred the energies and aroused a new hope in the hearts of men and women.

"Thus it happened that when the first generation born under the American flag and reared in an atmosphere of freedom and equal opportunity reached the full powers of its maturity there set in an era of research, invention and progress, which has lasted for one hundred years, and during which time more has been accomplished by the human family than it had accomplished in all the centuries that had gone before. And so it is today, after one hundred and forty two years of continuous government, during which time the Constitution has stood all tests, met every essential requirement, this is a nation of one hundred and twenty million people populating a vast territory three thousand miles east and west and extending from the Canadian line to our Southern border. One hundred and twenty million people: all speaking the same language, governed by the same laws; using the same units of value in barter and trade; doing a volume of domestic trade no country ever before dreamed of; manufacturing on a scale never before attempted. Our foreign trade amounts to nearly ten billion dollars annually, the products of our looms, mills, shops and factories and farms go to all ports along the seven seas of the world; education is now literally forced on all our children.

"Never in all the history of the world have the people of any country been so well housed, well clothed, well paid and well fed as are the masses of the people in the United States today. All of these things and conditions are but the flowering and fruiting of the splendid seeds of government sown into the Constitution of the United States by the Fathers of our great government. Yet this heritage of ours is being viciously attacked and assaulted with scarcely a protest from the great body of our people!

"In some way it must be brought home to the American people that their principles and institutions of government are being attacked from many directions. Subtle and open attacks against the business interests are being planned and carried out in all parts of our country. Radicals in the United States senate, while not openly declaring themselves to be socialists or communists are constantly seeking to promote and put over legislation, aimed largly against the business interests of the country, and which warms cockles of the heart of every radical and red leader from Greenwich Village to Moscow.

The Rock River- Chapter of Sterling were entertained as guests for the afternoon. The assistant hostesses were Mrs. Willard Thompson, Miss Pankhurst, Miss Armington, Miss Murphy, Mrs. R. W. Thompson and Miss Wolcott.

The talk was very well received and all were most enthusiastic about it, many of the guests gathering about Mr. Maling afterward and asking him questions which he very ably answered, as he is especially well informed on his subject and feels that he has a real message for the American people.

Manhattan's Easter Parade; Lapin Jacket A Favorite Fashion

By ALLEN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, Apr., 6 -(UP)-Manhattan's mayfair dowagers, debutantes and drawing room heroes—went for a stroll yesterday on Fifth avenue, and, to a patient observer on the sidelines, it was extremely interesting to note that the rabbit has been brought out of the egg-laying category.

Until this year the rabbit has played a rather unappreciated role in the celebration of Easter, having had to lay numberless eggs in all the colors of the rainbow bearing such inscriptions as "A Happy Easter to You."

But the gentle bunny, masquerading under the name of Lapin, won in a walk in the Easter parade this year, for the chill, grey day made a fur wrap highly desirable, and the Lapin jacket struck what the ladies seemed to think was the proper note.

Though its gaiety and brilliance suffered from a complete absence of sunshine, the immemorial Easter parade still retained some of the pageantry which has made it famous since the days when Ward McAllister ruled the "400". The shining silk hats and cutaways, the broughs rushing past St. Patrick's and St. Thomas's on Fifth Avenue, a score of horse drawn victorias waiting beside the curb—these remain, and will for many years.

In two respects the Easter fashions—which are authoritative for the whole country—harked back to to beginning of the century. Besides the short jackets already mentioned, fitted closely on old fashioned lines, women have returned to the sailor hat, worn high on the head with flowers under the brim.

No less a fashion expert than Madem Gabrielle Chanel of Paris, observed with approval what American women are wearing. She found the parade a "symphony of blue" stylishly up-to-date also with the popular new greys.

"The great chic and elegance of American women, their lasting youth and beauty, are everlastingly envied by women abroad," remarked the great designer.

But aside from such considerations as these—the height of the hemline, the color of a gown—the Easter parade in New York seems to follow its traditional pattern year in and year out.

The silk-hatted parishioners started as usual past a battery of movie cameras. And Mr. Zero, properietor of that celebrated haven for down-and-outers, known as "The Hub," shows up promptly with 100 unshaved followers, all wearing stovepipe hats and swallow-tail coats, and carrying such placards as "Jesus said: Woe to the rich."

W. F. M. S. Founders' Day Meeting at the Church on Thursday

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist church held their Founder's Day meeting at the church Thursday, April 2nd. A cafeteria luncheon was served at 1 o'clock, to which honorary members and friends were invited.

A very interesting program followed. After singing the hymn, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," Mrs. Maude Hobbs conducted the devotions. The topic was "Through Temple Doors to Service." All joined in singing, "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee" and "Have Thine Own Way, Lord." Mrs. Herman Missman offered prayer. A short item was read by the stewardship secretary, Mrs. Withers, on the Surrendering of Our Wills to His. Mrs. A. D. George then favored by singing "The Cross." She was accompanied by Mrs. Blake Grover.

This was Woman's Missionary Friend day as well as Founder's Day and a short demonstration was put on under the leadership of the Friend Secretary, Miss Calla Morgan, entitled "Find Yourself." The leading character who represented the Woman's Missionary Friend was dressed in a Quaker costume, decorated with pictures and pages of the magazine. It showed that the reason why some women do not subsribe for the "Friend" is because they do not take the time and trouble to find out what interesting material it really contains. The other characters were:

Herald—Mrs. Chas. Williford.

Mrs. Not Interested — Mrs. Chas. Winbrenner.

Mrs. Am Too Busy—Mrs. Wm. Gebhardt.

Miss W. F. M. S. Member—Mrs. E. J. Randall.

Missionary Reader — Mrs. Calla Morgan.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. C. G. Heritage now of Oak Park, who gave to us a very interesting and beautiful description of the birth place of our foreign Missionary society at Tremont church, Boston. Mrs. Heritage having visited Boston was able to give a clear picture of the church and the room known as Founder's room where the society was organized 61 years ago. This room contains many interesting curios and relics. Among those of most interest are two Bibles, one belonging to Miss Clara Swain, one of the first missionaries and the other belonging to Mrs. Clementina Butler, known as Mother Butler, which was given to her on her wedding day by her husband. Probably the greatest treasure to be found in this room is a cashmere shawl which also belonged to her. This valuable shawl was bought by her husband at an auction in Delhi, India, for $13 at a time when they were in dire need of something for warmth for herself and babe. It has figured in several noted occasions since. The meeting closed with a prayer offered by L. B. Neighbor, one of the guests.

PALMYRA MUTUAL AID WEDNESDAY—

All members are requested to remember the article for the exchange bag. Roll call will be answered to with a short verse on Spring or the name of a favorite flower.

CUSTARD DESSERTS WILL BAKE BETTER IN SMALL DISHES

Coffee is Also Better When Roasted in Small Lots — Hills Bros.' Method

The smaller the dish, the more evenly and quickly the oven heat can penetrate to the center of the custard. Such results cannot be counted upon when large baking dishes are used.

Applying this principle to roasting their fine blend of coffee, Hills Bros. found the way to develop uniform flavor in every ounce. A constant stream of green coffee is introduced into the roaster in automatically measured lots of about three pounds, and passes through in a steady flow, roasting a little at a time. There is accurate control of both the flow of coffee and the temperature.

This process, patented by Hills Bros.—Controlled Roasting—develops a delicious uniform flavor no other coffee has. The ordinary method—roasting in bulk—is virtually lacking in control.

Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee in the vacuum can that keeps it ever-fresh. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed from this can and kept out. Coffee packed in ordinary cans, even if air-tight, does not stay fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

A CITY SLICKER SLIPS.

One moral to be drawn from the news of the day seems to be that the city slicker has to stick to the city if he wants to keep on slicking people.

In the downfall of Fred Burke, the notorious Chicago gunmen, we get just one more illustration of the fate that befalls the city chap when he forsakes his natural habitat and heads for the tall grass.

Burke was wanted, very badly, by the police of a good many cities.

Chicago wanted him for the St. Valentine's Day massacre. St. Joseph, Mich., wanted him for the murder of a policeman. Toledo wanted him for a big mail robbery. Detroit blamed him for a series of kidnapings and murder. New York felt that he was responsible for the killing of Frankie Uale.

But Burke, flitting from one city to another, managed to avoid detection quite easily. His downfall came when he made his hideout in a small Missouri village.

In this village there was a young truck driver, who was given to reading detective story magazines. He read a story about Burke in one of these magazines, studied his picture, and recognized the man when he saw him. He notified the police—and Burke was soon in jail.

That little story gets duplicated rather often. Burke is far from being the first hard guy from the city to come to grief in the sticks; and the whole thing points a reminder of differing attitudes of city and country folk.

In the city no man knows who his neighbors are. The man in the next apartment is a complete mystery. No one knows about him, and no one cares.

Furthermore, if the city chap happens to get suspicious, the chances are that he will say nothing about it—except, perhaps, to his wife. He knows that there are many things in city life that "look funny"; to tell the police may be only to get himself into trouble. So, as a general thing, he goes his way an keeps his mouth shut.

But in the country it is different. Small towns may have a deplorable tendency to gossip; but this trait does put the stranger under the necessity of giving some sort of account of himself. Where everyone knows everyone else, a newcomer can easily become the object of gossip; and this gossip can easily be translated into action.

So the city slicker, deserting the bright light and the asphalt pavements, is apt to come to grief. Sticking in the city, Fred Burke might have gone his way for years, despite the multiplicity of policemen, detectives and next door neighbors. Moving to a small town, he got nabbed in short order.

WHERE GENIUS FAILS.

In a day when authors of the most banal of our popular song hits are richly rewarded, when their compositions are "plugged" and sung over the radio "by special permission of the copyright owners," it is indeel strange to read that the composer of an enduring melody, and one probably destined to immortality, should die in poverty and obscurity.

Such was the fate of Jacob Sandler, who died a destitute old man in Brooklyn the other day. Some 40 years ago he wrote a stirring Jewish song, Eli Eli. He saw the song sell into the hundreds of thousands; he lived to see it become a tune familiar to millions throughout the world. But Sandler's mistake was in failing to get the song copyrighted in time to benefit him.

Sandler's plight is not so much attributable to his own negligence (geniuses rerely concern themselves with patents, copyright and such things), but rather, we think, to the indifference of our own society which allowed him to stand unrewarded on the sidelines while his great song went marching on.

STYLES AND ECONOMICS.

A professor with academic degrees attached to his name has come forward with the theory that there is an odd relationship between feminine fashions and economic conditions. Short skirts, he says, have always been worn during eras of prosperity; in times of depression gowns lengthen.

This statement seems to be one of those outlandish dictums which occasionally eminate from academic halls. There would seem to be more point in the professor's theories if he reversed them. It takes more cloth and more sewing to make dresses with long, full skirts than knee-length, skimpy ones. If national economic conditions are to be affected surely merchants and manufacturers should profit more when style arbiters rule that skirts shall be long.

Then there's the egotistic anagram player who regards himself as a man of letters.

No pilot, says the office sage, wants to show what his plane's cracked up to be.

In the past month it is said Chicagoans did well to beware the "rides" of March.

A man who bolts his meals, says the dietitian, usually is a nut.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Within their boat they rode around and everywhere they went they found a lot of pretty scenery. Said Scouty, "I suggest that we stay out here till it's night. Then, if the moon is shining bright, I know it will be pretty. In the meantime we can rest."

"Ah, that is great," wee Clowny cried. "Of course I like this sort of ride, but rests sounds even better and I guess I'll snooze a while. Be quiet as you can. Don't peep and then I'll get a chance to sleep." The laziness of Clowny made the other Tinies smile.

It wasn't long until 'twas night, and soon the moon was shining bright. Another boat came near them and some music filled the air.

"Oh, listen," Coppy cried. "That is sweet! I claim that this is quite a treat. Why, if I had to ride out here all night, I wouldn't care."

But Mister Travel Man said, "No! We can't do that. It's time to go and crawl into some comfy beds where we can sleep at ease. I know what's best, so follow me and soon in slumberland we'll be."

The Tinymites obeyed him 'cause it wasn't nice to tease.

Next morning they were out again. They strolled around a while and then one of the Tinies shouted, "Look. I see a funny sight." A man then caught the Tinies' eye. He smiled at them and shouted, "I'm selling wondrous pottery. I'll promise it's all right."

The Travel Man gave him some change and said, "You may think that it's strange, but we don't want your pottery. We'll only look around for these lads are traveling 'round the land and sights like this are simply grand. They get a lot of pleasure out of everything that is found."

(The Tinymites hear some strange music in the next story.)

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY OF

DECLARATION OF WAR

On April 6, 1917, the House of Representatives passed a resolution, which the Senate had passed two days before, declaring war against Germany.

The vote in the Senate had been 82 to 6. The vote in the House was 373 to 50. The joint resolution was signed by Thomas R. Marshall, vice president; Champ Clark, speaker of the House, and approved by President Wilson, on this date.

Our entrance into the war followed the breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany Feb. 3, after that country had begun its campaign of unrestricted submarine war fare and 200 Americans had lost their lives on the high seas.

Two days after the resolution declaring war was adopted, the Austrian charge d'affaires in Washington asked for his passports because his country was an ally of Germany. It was not, however, until Dec. 7, 1917, that war was declared against Austria-Hungary.

Daily Health Talk

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The public is constantly being told again and again that acidosis is a menance to health and life, and that it can be overcome by taking immense amounts of orange juice.

A true acid state of the blood never actually occurs in life. Acidosis is, therefore, merely the tendency toward production of such a state that may arise under various disease conditions, or in connection with certain disturbances of metabolism. Acid is always being developed in the body, but it is excreted through the lungs and the kidneys, being carried to these parts by the blood.

As long a the production of acid remains within normal limits, as emphasized by Leonard Findlay, and as long as the organs necessary to the removel of the acid are healthy, the person does not suffer any disturbance. However, whenever the amount of acid produced is excessive of whenever the organs concerned with the removal are diseased, the acid tends to accumulate.

The body endeavors to avoid the accumulation of acid by various chemical changes, and the task sometimes becomes more than the body can perform.

There are some gastro-intestinal diseases in which acidosis develops both because of increased production and because the alkaline substances are lost through the bowel. This happens when there is great loss of fluid from vomiting or diarrhea. The obvious treatment is to replace the loss of fluid and to hinder the production of acid substance by giving water, salts, and glucose. If these cannot be taken by mouth, the physician administers them by injection into the tissues or into a vein.

Diabetes is the main condition in which acidosis results. In this disease the patient is unable to use sugar so that fats are incompletely burned in the body and acid substances are produced. These acid substances accumulate, and the body must develop alkaline substances to neutralize them.

In connection with the larger flow of urin in diabetes there is a tendency to wash alkali out of the body. For this reason it is customary in diabetes, with acid conditions, to control the acid condition by the giving of bicarbonate of soda and by supplying glucose. Acidosis also occurs in some diseases of the kidney, but it is never so severe in such conditions as when it is associated with diabetes.

There are some physicians who believe that mild conditions of acidosis may be responsible for all sorts of symptoms, such as headache, nausea, lack of "pep," and similar vague disturbances. The control of such conditions is obviously much more simple than in the severe acidosis that occurs in the diseases that have been mentioned.

Little Rock, Ark., Apr. 6—(AP)—Chicago's White Sox left Little Rock today, looking forward to tomorrow when they will begin to operate with the same team that is likely to start the American League championship season.

They had an engagement with the New York Giants today at Jackson, Miss., but tomorrow, Lu Blue, recently purchased first baseman, will join the club at Atlanta, Ga., and Manager Donie Bush will be able to concentrate on other weaknesses in the Sox lineup.

Los Angeles, Apr. 6 —(UP)—Still one game under a .500 average for the training season, the Chicago Cubs today bid goodbye to California and started the meandering journey to Chicago for the opening of the National League season.

The training trip has been a disappointment to Manager Rogers Hornsby, but the experiments will be abandoned and the lineup that will start the National League championship season against Pittsburgh, will be in action from tomorrow on.

Atlanta, Ga., Apr. 6—(AP)—Dizzy Dean has been a good boy for more than a week, and Manager Gabby Street of the St. Louis Cardinals believes the sensational young pitcher has decided at last to take his baseball seriously.

Unless Gabby and Dizzy have another misunderstanding about the proper time to sleep or something else in the meantime, Dean will have an opportunity to show the customers in St. Louis next Sunday whether he's as good as he says he is. Street has tentatively nominated Dizzy to face the Browns that day in the annual city series.

Louisville, Ky., Apr. 6—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds neared home today still looking for some batting punch but apparently without any chance of securing it for some time. One last effort to buy Chick Hafey, hard hitting St. Louis Cardinals outfielder, unsigned by his club was repulsed by Red Bird officials with the statement that Hafey was not for sale, and the indication that he will play with the Cardinals this season or not at all.

Kansas City, Mo. Apr. 6—(AP)—Irving Burns, who was recently told by Manager Bill Killefer to "play ball like a major leaguer or get out," apparently has no intention of getting out. New Orleans, Apr. 6 —(AP)—Two tennis veterans who will represent the United States in European play this spring received a costly pre-season workout at the New Orleans Country Club invitation tennis tournament, which closed yesterday as George Lott of Philadelphia won the singles title in a pitched battle with young Clifford Sutter of New Orleans. The score was 6-4, 6-2, 4-6, 1-6, 6-4.

Lott's singles victory followed his loss with John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, his Davic Cup partner, of the tournament doubles title to Sutter and the hard-driving young Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Calif.

Wood Will Attempt To Regain Record

Miami Beach, Fla., Apr. 6—(AP)—Gar Wood turned today to the task of tuning the motors of his Miss America IX for an attempt to bring back the world's speedboat record to America.

Wood arrived here yesterday from New York and went to his home on Indian Creek where he will prepare his craft for the assault on the mark of 13.49 miles an hour established by Kaye Don of England, at Buenos Aires last week.

The Detroit manufacturer said he would go over the Miss America IX thoroughly before he makes his trial for the record. He did not say when he expected to have the boat ready for its run.

Wood drove his Miss America IX over the placid course in Indian Creek at a speed of 102.56 miles an hour March 21 last, bettering the mark set up by the late Sir Henry O. D. Segrave at Lake Windermere, England, by a little more than three miles an hour.

ROBINS LOOM AS THREAT IN NATIONAL CLAN

Brooklyn Team Strengthened By O'Doul and Fresco Thompson

By HENRY MCLEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, April 6-(UP)-Strengthened by the acquisition of Lefty O'Doul and Fresco Thompson, the Brooklyn Robins, who finished in fourth place in the National League last season, must be reckoned as a serious threat in the 1931 campaign.

The Robins' main strength lies in their hitting. Given decent pitching, this power at the plate may enable them to club their way past the Cardinals, Cubs, Giants and the Pirates, the four teams rated as their rivals for the flag.

In O'Doul, Herman and Frederick, the Robins have a trio of out-fielders expected to outhit any other set of flychasers in the League. The infield, composed of Bissonette on first, Thompson at second, Wright at short, and Gilbert at third, also packs a heavy batting punch.

Leaders Are Left-handed

Since the leading hitters on the team — O'Doul, Herman, Frederick and Bissonette—all are left-handed batters, rival managers undoubtedly will try and check them by using southpaw pitching whenever possible. This strategy may not work, however, for O'Doul never has been bothered by portsiders, and Frederick and Bissonette hit any and all sorts of chunking. Herman dislikes left-handers but fortunately for the Robins, there are few capable southpaws in the League.

With Thompson on second the Robins are assured of a reliable fielder and a fairly decent hitter. Last year it was necessary for manager Robinson to make frequent and disturbing changes at second base.

Have Good Pitchers

The Robins pitching staff is one of quality and quantity. Dazzy Vance, Phelvs, Luque, Gallivan, Quinn and Thurston will be the right-handed regulars, while Clarke Shaute and Heimach will form the southpaw brigade. Vance, late to sign, may not be able to start regularly in the early games of the season, but when he rounds into shape he should be as effective as last year, when he topped all big league pitchers in the important matter of earned runs allowed.

The catching department is top-notch. Al Lopez, fiery little Cuban, again will handle most of the work with Ernie Lombardi, Pacific coast giant, as his understudy.

Dumb base running, outstanding characteristic of the Robins during the last few years, may not be so much in evidence in 1931. Manager Robinson has surrounded his boys with smart coaches who have sworn to prevent Herman from tripling into a triple play as he did two summers ago.

JUDGES STOPPED AMERICAN'S BULL FIGHTING DEBUT

Say They Were Afraid He Would Have Been Killed By Bull

Juarez, Mex., Apr. 6—(UP)—Tex Monroe, American cowboy, declared today it was not his fault but the judges that he was forced to make a speech instead of killing the bull assigned to his debut as a matador.

Monroe, who hoped to follow the example of Sidney Franklin of Brooklyn, and become the second American matador in bull fighting history, was not permitted by the judges to kill the animal. The judges stopped the fight because, they said, they were afraid Monroe would be killed.

There was nothing to do, the cowboy said, except to tell the spectators how he felt about it and what he might have done, had he had the chance.

"Heck, I could have killed the bull even though it was the wildest and the largest of the five that were turned into the ring."

"I got stuck in the leg once. That was just a bruise, though."

Far from giving up his career as a bull fighter, Monroe said when he goes into the ring for his scheduled fight at Piedras Egras, Mex., next Sunday, he would "fight two bulls instead of one."

In yesterday's encounter, the bull had Monroe pushed against the fence several times as the matador flourished his red cape.

"He was a wicked bull," Tex said. "He had his eyes always on me instead of on the cape."

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

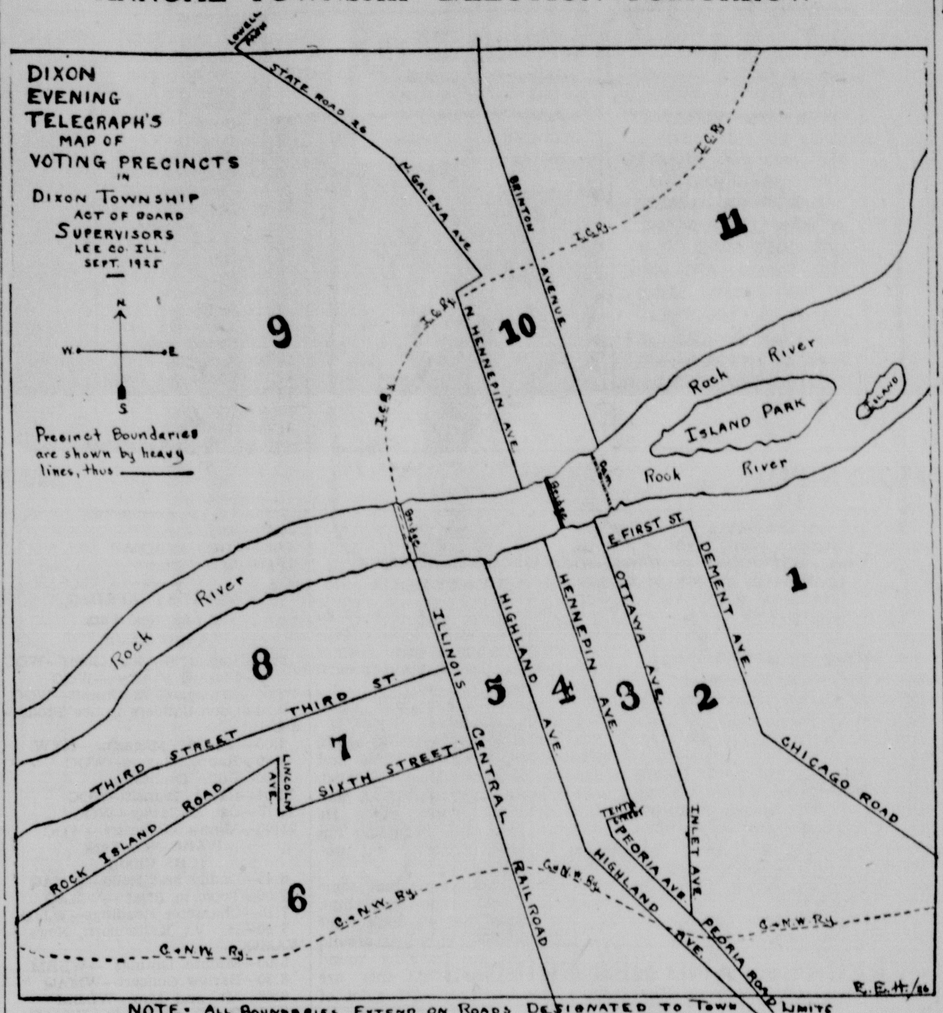

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" —bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

OPENING BIG LEAGUE PLAY IS WEEK AWAY

The Baseball Season Gets Under Way A Week From Tomorrow

By DIXON STEWART
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, Apr. 6—(UP)—Baseball's 1931 spring training season has reached the final stage. The Philadelphia Athletics and Phillies already are engaged in their annual city series and 10 other clubs are scheduled to make their home debuts this week.

All teams except the Cleveland Indians now are enroute to big league territory. The Indians, last to break camp, will leave New Orleans Wednesday but will not reach Cleveland until April 13, the day before the opening of the season.

Cleveland, the Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh and the Chicago White Sox are the only teams which will not play exhibition games before their home-town fans. Pittsburgh and the Sox open the season away from home and will not appear on their home field until April 22. The Cubs close their exhibition series at Kansas City, April 12, but will work out at Wrigley Field, Chicago, on April 13.

The White Sox are making their northern trip with the New York Giants and the two clubs will play a two game series at New York Polo Grounds Saturday and Sunday. The Sox will play a final exhibition at Toledo, O., April 13, and open the major league season at Cleveland, the following day.

Pittsburgh is enroute from the Pacific coast with the Detroit Tigers and will play the Tigers at Detroit, April 10, 11 and 12, before going to Chicago to open the season with the Cubs.

Cleveland will break its barnstorming trip with exhibition games against the Cincinnati Reds at Cincinnati Saturday and Sunday.

Washington's Senators make their 1931 debut at Griffith's stadium Wednesday in a game with the Boston Phillies Thursday. They go to Baltimore Friday but return home to close their exhibition series against Baltimore and Rochester respectively on Saturday and Sunday.

"City Series" competition is scheduler at Boston, New York and St. Louis Saturday and Sunday. The New York Yankees and Brooklyn Robins will clash at Ebbets Filed, Brooklyn, with the St. Louis Browns and Cardinals meeting at Sportsman Park, St. Louis, and the Braves and Red Sox will meet in a "home and home" series at Fenway Park and Braves Field, Boston.

Nation's Wealth Rises 2 Percent in Bad Year

New York, April 6—(UP)—National wealth increased about two per cent during 1930 in the face of the world wide business depression but national income dropped 17 per cent in the period, according to the Alexander Hamilton institute.

American wealth, according to the institute, amounts to $340,500,000,000 against 373,000,000,000 a year ago. A decrease of 8.9 per cent in actual money but an increase of 2 per cent based on increased purchasing power of the dollar. Per capita income of $692 in 1929 dropped to $542 in 1930.

LOCAL FACTORY MAKES FIXTURES FOR WALGREEN'S

American Body & Cab Co. Manufacturing All Kinds Fixtures

Every conceivable type of display counter that could be used by druggists and other merchants are now being built at the American Body and Cab Company's plant here, L. A. Neis, president of the company stated today.

Among the customers this organization serves is the Walgreen Drug Company, which has recently placed an order for a large number of display counters to be used in their stores throughout the country.

The "Simplex Line" of counters and display trays is a comparatively new departure for the company, Mr. Neis said. Just recently he completed a survey of existing counter designs and decided that more efficient display set-ups could be built that would assist in increasing sales of auxiliary drug supplies such as books and toilet articles.

Poplar Wood Used

Poplar wood is the material most used in the manufacture of these counters although steel is sometimes employed for the larger stands. The wooden products are stained with walnut and other stains and where bright colors are desired, are lacquered.

The sizes of the counters vary from small table book stands to the large island counters with a small desk built-in for a cash register. These last mentioned tables are largely used for novelties' displays.

The counters are built, for the most part, in anticipation of sales, but many orders come in for specially designed tables, Neis said.

He stated that in shipping, most of the counters can be packed already set up and can be moved into a store at night, to be ready for business the next morning.

There are two educational trips—one to Washington, D. C., leaving March 29th and one to Knoxville, Smoky National Park and Chattanooga, Tenn, March 28. For further particulars address The Dixon Evening Telegraph. tf

ARMY FAVORS WATER-COOLED PLANE MOTOR

Air-cooled Type Makes Too Much Air Resistance

Washington, April 6-(AP)-The air cooled engine which carried Byrd and Lindbergh across the ocean is losing favor with the Army.

After much experimenting, air corps officials are convinced that for military purposes at least the liquid cooled power plant is the engine of the immediate future.

The air-cooled engine's advantage of lightness of weight is offset by an unavoidable frontal area which creates so much air resistance as to reduce speed seriously.

The liquid cooled engine, on the other hand, although of greater weight per horse power, can be compactly constructed and is adaptable to steam-lining, thus permitting speeds that planes with the air-cooled motor cannot attain.

Air corps officials point out that the liquid cooled engine burns less gasoline than the air cooled. Consequently for flights of given distance its greater weight can be offset to some extent by carrying less gasoline.

Air corps experimental stations are developing several types of liquid cooling systems. One uses steam, another a chemical-ethylene, with a high boiling point and low freezing point. And the water-cooled engine is not being neglected.

Naval air-corps engineesr still see possibilities in the air-cooled engine. They are experimenting with both though recognizing that the air-cooled engine has its limitations, believe the immediate trend may be in either direction.

STATUE FOR PAVLOVA

London—(UP)—The grace of that dainty dancer, the late Pavlova, may be preserved for posterity in a white marble statue of her in the first movement of "The Dying Swan." A memorial fund is being raised for the erection of such a statue, possibly in Kensington Gardens.

MAD MARRIAGE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY McBRIDE, 19-year-old typist in a New York office, marries JIM WALLACE the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin, ANNE TROWBRIDGE. Gypsy has been jilted by ALAN CROSBY, back from a year and a half in Paris, and Wallace's fiance has broken their engagement. There is no romance in the union. Wallace is a young lawyer. They go to his home in Forest City where his relatives are antagonistic to Gypsy and snub her.

Jim undertakes the defense of NINA ROBERTS, accused of murdering her employer, DR. FOWLER. The case is sensational with circumstantial evidence strongly against the girl, and Gypsy becomes deeply interested in it. MRS. FOWLER, wife of the dead man, is called as a witness and faints on the stand. Experts declare the wound could not have been self-inflicted and it appears the prosecution will win. Gypsy, on impulse, goes to see Mrs. Fowler at her home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

A YOUNG girl in a soiled apron, answering Gypsy's ring, looked out doubtfully through the partly opened door.

"Does Mrs. Fowler live here?" Gypsy asked.

"Yes, ma'am, but I don't know if you can see her."

"You don't understand. Please tell her that I—"

"Oh, are you the nurse?"

The door opened then and the girl stepped back for Gypsy to enter. The pause wase barely perceptible. Then Gypsy nodded.

"Yes," she said, "I'm the nurse. Will you tell Mrs. Fowler I'm here?"

A child's cry, fretful and high-pitched, rent the air, and the girl turned. "I'll tell her you've come," she said and disappeared through a doorway.

Gypsy had time to inspect the room. It ran the width of the house with a group of windows making a window seat facing the street. The room was well furnished though with no particular distinction. There was a piano at the far side, a piece of Chinese embroidery thrown over its top. The furniture was a matching "set" of heavy, overstuffed design with here and there a piece of mahogany. The rug looked expensive. There were newspapers in an untidy heap on the davenport and Gypsy caught glimpses of the black headlines describing the Roberts trial. It must have been a day or two since the room had been dusted. Gypsy noticed that there were ashes in the tray beside the davenport.

At the sound of footsteps the girl arose. Mrs. Fowler—she recognized her immediately—appeared in the doorway. The woman's face was drawn and worn. Her hair was knotted back carelessly. She looked older than when Gypsy had seen her in the courtroom.

"You're Miss Thompson?" she said to Gypsy. "I wasn't expecting you so soon but I'm glad you've come. Bobby's feverish and I can't make him lie quiet. Shall we go up—"

Gypsy interrupted. "Just a minute, Mrs. Fowler," she said. "I'd better tell you at once I'm not the nurse."

"Why, what do you mean?"

"I'm not the nurse—Miss Thompson or whoever it was you expected. I've come to see you about something terribly important. I couldn't tell anyone else and I thought it was best to let the girl misunderstand."

The woman's face had hardened. "Who are you?" she demanded. "And what do you want here?"

Gypsy spoke in a lower voice: "I'm Mrs. Wallace," she said. "I saw you in the courtroom the other day. My husband is Nina Roberts' attorney—"

Mrs. Fowler put up one hand to stop her. "I can't listen to you," she said. "Upstairs my little boy is lying sick—maybe dying! I've got to go to him. You'll have to leave."

• • •

IT was terrible to see the woman's agony. This was nothing like the fainting spell in the courtroom.

"But I can't go until I've told you—" Gypsy began. The ring of the doorbell interrupted. Mrs. Fowler hesitated. Then she opened the door.

A pleasant soprano voice spoke. "I'm Miss Thompson," the voice said. "Dr. Rogers sent me to take care of the little boy."

"Please come in."

A young woman in a blue suit, carrying a small suitcase, entered. She smiled at Gypsy. "How is the child now?" the nurse asked.

"When I left him," Mrs. Fowler said, "he was quieter, but I don't know how long it will last. Will you come upstairs?"

The two disappeared and Gypsy sat down, frowning. It must be now or never. Mrs. Fowler would have to listen to her! Twice she heard the child crying. It must have been 10 minutes before the woman returned.

Mrs. Fowler had been weeping. She came directly to the girl, fixing her frightened eyes on Gypsy's. "What is it you want?" she asked.

Out of the unknown, inspiration had come to Gypsy. It was not what she had intended to say. It was intuition—born in that brief instant Mrs. Fowler had paused on the threshold. There was no time to consider.

Gypsy stood up. Her voice was hushed. "I've come to tell you that they know!" she whispered dramatically.

"Who? What do you mean?"

"I've come from the trial—Nina Roberts' trial." Gypsy went on breathlessly. "I've come to tell you they know she didn't do it. They've got the whole story. Everything! I've come to warn you—!"

Mrs. Fowler's eyes were glassy. She was staring at the girl. Gypsy, sure she was right, went on relentlessly:

"Go to my husband and tell him the truth!" she whispered. "Only hurry! He'll help you. They'll be easier on you if you confess. Tell them he was cruel to you! You've got a chance if you hurry. No one will ever know that I've been here. I promise you they'll never know!"

Mrs. Fowler had buried her face in her hands. Her shoulders rocked. When the words came they were indistinct:

"He threatened to kill Bobby!" she moaned. "I—I had to do it!"

Gypsy put her hand on the other woman's arm. "Tell them that," she said. "They'll be easy with you. Did he—strike you?"

Mrs. Fowler shook her head. Her voice was still muffled. "He hit Bobby!" she said. "He was jealous of him. And now Bobby's going to die to punish me! Oh, I've been nearly crazy! Bobby isn't going to get well. He's going to die because I've been a wicked woman! I didn't mean to do it, I tell you. I swear I didn't! Oh, Bobby, Bobby! Oh, what will I do?"

• • •

"HUSH—you'll disturb the boy!" Gypsy ordered. Mrs. Fowler was weeping hysterically. There was no time to lose. "Bobby isn't going to die," the girl went on. "Don't you see if you tell the truth things will be all right? Listen, I have a cab waiting outside. Get your coat and hat and I'll take you right down—"

"But I can't go. I can't leave Bobby!" the woman protested.

"Do you want him to die? Do you want him to die because you let them punish Nina Roberts for what you did?"

It was all illogical but it was effective. Almost before Mrs. Fowler knew what she was doing Gypsy had her in the taxicab. Throughout the ride the woman kept her eyes covered with a handkerchief. She wept spasmodically. Gypsy was excited. Over and over she repeated instructions.

Mrs. Fowler was to go to the little room at the right of the entrance and speak to the bailiff. She must say she had an important message for Mr. Wallace. Very important! After Jim appeared she must talk to him privately and tell him it was she who had killed her husband. Jim would know what to do next.

When the cab stopped Gypsy pulled the other woman's hat down to hide her face. There was little likelihood that Mrs. Fowler would be recognized.

"I can't come with you," Gypsy said, "but I'll be praying for Bobby. Goodby!"

She told the driver to wait until the black-coated figure had disappeared through the entrance to the courthouse. Then they drove back to the Wallace home.

When she entered the house Gypsy was amazed to find it was only 10:30. There were letters on the table in the hall. She glanced through them. Nothing interesting. She tried to busy herself at half a dozen tasks and gave up each one in disgust. Only one thing occupied her mind. What was happening in the courtroom?

There were moments when she wondered if Mrs. Fowler's nerve had failed her. Had she been able to reach Jim?

"I should have stayed down town," Gypsy thought. "There might be extras on the street. No—it's better for me to be home!"

So long as she was alone she could not keep her mind off the trial. She went upstairs and changed to a house dress, then descended to the kitchen. Matilda was putting clean paper on the shelves of the cupboard for canned supplies.

"Matilda," Gypsy asked, "how do you make cookies?"

The cook looked around from her perch on the top of the stepladder. "Haven't you ever baked cookies?" she asked incredulously.

"No, but I'm going to. I'm going to make some now."

"But Mis' Wallace, Friday's the baking day. If I'd known you wanted cookies I'd have made them early—"

"I'm glad you didn't," Gypsy interrupted. "I don't want you to make the cookies, Matilda. I want to make them myself."

• • •

THE cook looked dubious. "What kind of cookies were you going to make?"

"I don't know. Molasses cookies, I guess. No, ginger. We've got some ginger, haven't we?"

"Yes, Mis' Wallace."

"Where's the cook book?"

"There's some books up there on the shelf in the cabinet but if you want the kind of ginger cookies I make I never use a recipe."

"Well, then, you can tell me what to put in." Gypsy lifted down a large yellow mixing bowl and hunted through a drawer for spoons. Matilda's gaze was disapproving. This was certainly an unaccustomed procedure.

"I can stir up a batch in no time," she suggested. "I can make 'em right after lunch—"

Gypsy shook her head. "They may be terrible cookies," she said, "but I'm going to make them myself. Now what's the first thing I put into this bowl?"

For a half-hour she stirred and mixed dough and rolled it into thin sheets to be cut in discs. Matilda was at her elbow, prompting, suggesting, but Gypsy refused assistance. When the first tin of cookies went into the oven the girl stepped back with a sigh.

"What time is it?" she asked.

It was 11:30. Time enough for Jim to have telephoned if there were any news. Surely there should have been word by this time. Gypsy went to the door and propped it open so they could hear more clearly if the telephone rang.

There was another tray of cookies to be filled. Presently the air was filled with pungent, spicy odor.

"Want me to look at 'em?" Matilda asked. "Cookies burn awful easy."

Gypsy drew down the oven door. The cookies had puffed up and some of them had run together. She turned the blaze lower and returned to the mixing board. Soon the first tin was out and the second baking.

"They're good," Matilda admitted grudgingly. Gypsy munched a warm cookie and nodded, satisfied.

"You'll have to write down the recipe for me," she told the cook. "Where'd you learn how to make them?"

Matilda raised her hands in a gesture of mock despair. "How should I know? Ginger cookies—I've always made them the same way. German girls learn how to cook when they're young. One of seven, I was. I used to help my mother with the baking when I was 10 years old."

"Where did you live when you were a girl?" Gypsy asked.

"Minnesota. I've got two brothers there still."

It was not the occasion for Gypsy to be interested in Matilda's relatives. As soon as the last tin of cookies was out of the oven she left the kitchen.

Gypsy went into the living room and gazed dejectedly out at the street. Suddenly she heard an unfamiliar noise. She ran to the front door and out on the porch. Far in the distance she heard a boy shouting, "Extra—Extra!"

She could not see the newsboy but the voice came from the right. Gypsy started down the steps, but then the telephone rang shrilly. She turned but before she was inside the house Matilda was calling:

"Telephone, Mis' Wallace!"

PILES ALL GONE

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back, if you remove the case. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only an internal medcine can actually correct these conditions. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt discovered a real internal Pile remedy. After prescribing it for 1,000 patients with success in 960 cases, he named it HEM-ROID. Rowland's Pharmacy says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.—Adv.

Doctors Gaining In Fight On Tuberculosis

New York, April 6—(UP)—Medical science has made vast strikes in its relentless battle against the "white plague," mortality figures showed today.

A Metropolitan Life Insurance Company bulletin revealed that from 1910 to 1929 the tuberculosis death rate decreased. In some sections the decrease was 32 per cent and in others it ranged up to 62 per cent.

The bulletin represents a survey of 20 states, and says that without exception the death rate declined every year since 1910. The urban decline exceeded the rural. Only five states reported an increase in deaths in the rural districts.

The figures revealed also that workers in the least favored economic class made the greatest improvement. Street and sewer cleaners longshoremen, stevedores, janitors and building employes were listed in this class.

Miners in the Myndd Newydd coal mines in Wales have a chapel all their own at the bottom of the shaft in which they work. On Sundays, as they go into the mine to work, they first attend church service in the chapel.

Your Home GARDEN

By WILLIAM R. BEATTIE
U. S. Department of Agriculture
Written Especially for NEA Service and the Evening Telegraph.

About three of four years ago, when Italian or sprouting broccoli was announced as a new vegetable in this country, it made little difference to us that this newcomer had been grown and used in Italy for perhaps hundreds or even thousands of years.

The plant has been welcomed as a valuable addition to our list of garden vegetables.

Sprouting broccoli is a form of loose heading, green cauliflower that is much hardier and easier to grow that regular cauliflower.

Two crops, a spring crop and a fall crop, can be grown in most seccabbage. It is a cool weather crop about the same as early and late tions, the time of planting being and requires 130 to 150 days from the time of sowing the seed until the first of the heads are ready to use.

When To Plant

For the early spring crop the seeds should be sown indoors or in the hotbed and the plants set in the garden just a little later than early cabbage. For a late crop sow the seeds about the time you plant the seeds of late cabbage and plant in the garden at the same time as late cabbage or perhaps a week later.

Good, tender, sprouting broccoli cannot be grown on poor soil and, like its close relative the cauliflower, it must have plenty of fertility and considerable moisture in the soil. If the half acre home garden has had about 10 good loads of manure plowed under and a topdressing of three or four hundred pounds of fertilizer, the soil should be about right for growing good broccoli.

Needs Plenty of Water

If the season is dry it will be desirable to give the plants a good watering about twice a week. In the irrigated sections the sprouting broccoli should be irrigated the same as cabbage or cauliflower.

Broccoli grows rather large, so the rows should be about three feet apart and the plants about two or two and one-half feet apart in the rows.

Like other new vegetables most folks have to learn how to use the sprouting broccoli. First the plant forms a central head and after this is removed several smaller or side heads form. The heads should be cut when in bud and before any of the buds open or show blossom color.

Cut off about three or four inches of the tender stems with the head, wash, peel the lower part of the stems, cut into slices lengthwise and cook for 12 to 20 minutes in just enough water to cover, adding a little salt for flavoring.

Care must be taken not to overcook or to destroy the natural color or crispness of the stems or of the heads.

Serve sprouting broccoli with a little Hollandaise sauce or just a little melted butter wil do. It is also good with a little mayonnaise or with lemon juice or a touch of vinegar.

The main point is to use it while it is very tender and not allow it to become too old.

TOMORROW: Summer Greens.

Because men have power of thot is why so many cities have progressed so rapidly.

Properly directed thoughts possess the ability of action.

Actions bring results.

All citizens should act, and act together to help business. Helping business is the one big way to help a city.

Building a city is such a big, square-deal business proposition that all citizens should be more than willing to work together.

If they will work together, each one, as well as the whole city, will be more prosperous.

When citizens have the ability and energy and a willingness to work, nothing can hold them back.

Success is always achieved when every citizen works and pulls together.
